GIRL POWER

Sandra Bullock dishes about having the confidence to take on roles written for men.

Leah didn't hold anything back in her eye-opening Scientology tell-all — and she's hoping her raw honesty will pump up her bank account.

LEAH BANKING ON SCIENTOLOGY

LEAH REMINI IS LOOKING TO CASH IN WITH HER SHOCKING TELL-ALL BOOK

Leah Remini's explosive new memoir, Troublemaker, which details the dark side of Scientology, has sent shock waves through Hollywood — and now, the 45-year-old actress is hoping the hype will give her bank account a serious jolt as well.

"The main reason she's airing all this dirty laundry is that she's under a lot of financial stress," an insider tells OK!. "It wasn't an easy decision for her to make, but her career isn't exactly thriving."

While her hit sitcom King of Queens ran for nine years, the show never gave Leah the bump to the big screen she'd hoped for. More recently, she's resorted to reality TV, competing on Dancing with the Stars and filming her family life for TLC's It's All Relative. But with a tell-all that makes incendiary claims about the church and its star acolytes, including Tom Cruise and John Travolta, Leah is aiming to make up for her professional decline — and recoup the money she lost through the religion itself; by her own account, she spent millions on donations and "training" over her 34 years with the church, and her family fell $250,000 in debt.

But could her plan backfire? Since Nicole Kidman left in 2001, she's never spoken about her time in the church. "Leah often wonders whether Nicole kept her career alive by choosing not to open up about her past," says the pal. "But at the end of the day, this was the only way she could provide a more secure life for her family."

THE LATEST CELEB NEWS

INSIDER

An insider says that Amal Clooney, a renowned human rights attorney, would be eager to use her legal know-how to tackle any claims of poor conditions at his distillery.

GEORGE

BOOZE BOSS FROM HELL?

George Clooney has a problem on his hands. Sources tell OK! that some workers at the Mexican distillery where his Casamigos Tequila is produced, claim the dismal and dangerous conditions there approach sweatshop levels. According to an insider, employees say that they make as little as $3.33 a day — while one bottle sells for roughly 15 times that amount — and are forced to work weekends and toil away in an unsanitary work space where they're at risk of injury on the job.

While a manager at the Jalisco plant expressed concern she'd be fired if she answered questions about the work environment, the insider says, another employee revealed scars on her forearms from hand-labeling the tequila's fancy bottles and claimed that the only safety measure in place is an edict forbidding workers from speaking on the job. "When we work, we aren't allowed to talk, to avoid accidents," she reportedly said. "If we're busy, we must not talk at all."

The insider says that George and his business partner Rande Gerber are very likely unaware of the factory's alleged problems — including a single, filthy restroom for all the workers to share — and that the longtime humanitarian would no doubt be appalled. "George is known as one of Hollywood's biggest liberal activists," says a source. "If these reports turn out to be true, there's no way he and Rande will let it go."

GISELE'S BIG REVEAL

When Gisele Bündchen covered her mind-blowingly perfect physique in a burqa, of all things, last June in Paris, onlookers and oglers alike knew something was afoot. Now sources reveal that the 35-year-old supermodel and wife of Tom Brady underwent a breast augmentation and eyelid surgery — and was willing to go to great lengths (floor length, even!) to keep it under wraps. “Gisele’s always made such a big deal about living an all-natural life,” says an insider, “so she went out of her way to keep the surgery quiet.” But in the Bahamas on Nov. 1, a postsurgery Gisele seemed more than OK with a little attention — bikini clad, of course.

CAM & JEN BEST FRENEMIES?

There’s nothing like a little intense competition to kill camaraderie. Almost 20 years ago, Cameron Diaz and Jennifer Aniston costarred in the movie She’s the One. Now the 40-plus A-listers are angling for the same roles — and Cam isn’t happy about losing out. The most recent blow was the part of Sandy in Garry Marshall’s upcoming Mother’s Day. “Cameron loved the script,” says an insider, “but Jennifer beat her to the punch. There was a time when Cam got first dibs; now she can’t bear to hear Jennifer’s name.”

Kris “likes one fictionalized idea that has their love story ending in tragedy,” says a source. “But Khloé, of course, wants it to end on a happy note.”

LAMAR: THE MOVIE!

Addiction, overdosing, a star-crossed romance — Hollywood thinks Lamar Odom’s life story would make a great biopic, and Khloé Kardashian and Kris Jenner couldn’t agree more. Sources say Khloé, who’s been tending to her estranged husband since he was found unconscious in a Nevada brothel, has received several offers for his story, including one that focuses on their tumultuous marriage. “No deals can be inked until Lamar’s back on his feet,” says an insider, “but Khloé thinks a movie could be a hit. The only issue is how the family would be portrayed, and that’s why Kris is heavily involved.” The clan is already buzzing with casting ideas, the source adds, including “Will Smith for Lamar, and Khloé wants Jennifer Lawrence to play her.” Now, that would be an awardworthy stretch!

Jared "loves connecting with people," says a source. "He still gets a huge thrill out of being famous."

JARED HOLLYWOOD'S GOOD GUY!

He'll play the villainous Joker in next year's Suicide Squad, but in real life, Jared Leto is an uncommonly kind Oscar-winning movie star. At 43, he's been in the business more than 20 years, yet he still makes time for fans and crew members alike. "Jared will never forget the people who helped him get where he is," says an insider. "He's always talking about karma, and he treats people the way he wants to be treated, from interns to the folks who make his lunch." He's also determined not to disappoint his longtime band, Thirty Seconds to Mars. "Jared is doing everything he can to keep gigging with them," says the source, "even though he's busy making movies." Thirty seconds to swoon!

JOE'S PRISON PRIMING

Of all the worries that go along with a looming 41-month prison sentence, manscaping probably isn't high on most convicts' lists. But sources say that The Real Housewives of New Jersey's Joe Giudice, who's due behind bars in March, is so concerned about missing his regular back-waxing appointments that he's getting permanently de-fuzzed with laser treatments. "It's not to make himself look better for the other prisoners," stresses an insider. "But he likes to work out and knows he'll feel self-conscious about it. He's also worried about someone snapping photos of him. His back hair is one of his biggest insecurities." Stay classy, Joe!

Joe plans to leave the back hair and take the canoli.

GWYN PUTTING GOOP ON THE BLOCK

Gwyneth Paltrow, business titan? Insiders say the actress is looking to partner with a media company to grow her website Goop — started in 2008 as a newsletter from her kitchen — into a major lifestyle brand. "For the right price, $15 million to $20 million, she would sell off a big chunk and take it places other than online," says a source. "But she's a control freak, and her partners would have to come to grips with that."

CAITLYN'S LONELY LIFE

Caitlyn Jenner hasn't lacked for attention since her transition (and Vanity Fair cover) earlier this year. But a close, sincere circle of support has been harder to come by. "At first, her sisters and mom were front and center, her kids rallied around her and she invited other transgender women to be her new friends; even Kris Jenner came by," says an insider. "But suddenly, it's as though the novelty's worn off, and her trans friends have gone back to their lives, believing they don't have much in common with a superrich Hollywood celebrity." The source adds that Cait's "often alone" at her Malibu pad. Come on, Kardashis-kids!

Sources say Kris' absence has been hard on Caitlyn. "She wasn't just a wife, she was a best friend to Cait," says an insider.

JESSICA OH, FUDGE!

Jessica Biel planned to be the latest Hollywood actress to jump on the mommy-mogul train — but sources say the idea for her kid-friendly West Hollywood restaurant may have been too ambitious after all. As conceived by Jess and her stylist friend Estee Stanley, Au Fudge is a chic eatery featuring a high-end adult menu, kid-friendly options and spaces for kids' art projects and other activities. But funding problems and a protracted time line have left the opening — originally slated for October 2014 — indefinitely stalled. "Everything's way over budget and taking much longer than anticipated," says an insider. "Jessica's extremely stressed about the project and fears it'll be a failure. She's questioning if she bit off more than she can chew." Where will the L.A. moms who lunch eat now?

Jess shared this pic in February, proclaiming that the spot was "coming soon" — oops?

COUPLE NEWS

Christina & Matt's

BABY JOY!

Christina Aguilera and Matt Rutler just celebrated their daughter Summer Rain's first birthday in August, but sources close to the singer say that she's already expecting another arrival! "It wasn't planned, but they're both ecstatic," an insider says.

The source adds that Christina, 34, got the news just after signing back on to The Voice for season 10 (which is currently filming and will premiere in February), but she wants to keep it under wraps. Still, sources on set are suspicious because Xtina "looks bigger and is ordering way more food than usual, including weird requests." They aren't the only ones — a spy at Barneys New York in Beverly Hills reports that she recently sported "an obvious bump, even under a baggy sweater."

Although the surprise means she and Matt, 30, who got engaged last February, have to postpone their wedding, our source says she doesn't mind: "She's so happy to be pregnant again."

Christina and Matt's daughter, Summer Rain, may soon be a big sister.

Well, that was fast! After just five months together, Gigi Hadid and Joe Jonas have split, citing the usual conflict: scheduling differences. But a source tells OK! it wasn't just work that tore them apart. Gigi, 20, "grew tired of Joe's insecurities and neediness," the insider says. "They clashed over her close relationship with Kendall Jenner." The gorgeous besties constantly hang out and book the same modeling gigs — the source says they "even sleep in the same hotel suite when traveling together for jobs" — which made Joe, 26, uncomfortable. He also found Kendall, 20, "possessive" and complained that she spent more time with Gigi than he did, even frequently tagging along on their dates. The insider says, "Joe felt like Gigi was more into Kendall than him."

Bradley PALS DON'T TRUST IRINA

Although Irina Shayk seems to have won over Bradley Cooper's mom, Gloria Campano, a source says his friends aren't on board with the Russian bombshell, noting that they're "suspicious of her motivations." In May, Irina's former modeling agency claimed she bailed on a job to run off with an older, wealthy businessman. A month later, Irina, 29, denied reports she'd had an affair with ex-FIFA president Sepp Blatter. But now, the insider says, Bradley's circle has heard buzz that Irina "likes to hang out with other men while he's working." So they're urging the actor, 40, to drop her: "They think she's a gold digger."

Sandra FOOTING BRYAN'S BILL

Bryan Randall's come a long way! In August, when reports surfaced that he was dating Sandra Bullock, the photographer was living modestly. But a source says that since then Sandy, 51, has arranged for him to have a stylist, security and access to her PR team. "His life changed overnight," the insider says. "He'll look the part for any occasion she wants him to attend." Indeed, Bryan, 49, appeared more polished than usual at the Oct. 26 premiere of her movie Our Brand Is Crisis. But the source says that although he now has "full access to her staff, cars and credit cards," he isn't going overboard: "He doesn't want to abuse her generosity."

Calvin MEETS THE PARENTS

The source says the Swifts are a "very down-to-earth family" but want to make sure Calvin's "not taking advantage of Taylor."

What's on tap for Thanksgiving Day at the Swift house? Turkey (duh), board games after dinner... and grilling Calvin Harris! After the Scottish DJ was spotted leaving a seedy L.A. massage parlor in September, his relationship with Taylor, 25, became strained — and though they're still together, a source says her family wants to "make sure he's right for her." The insider adds, "Her dad, Scott, and brother, Austin, are superprotective and want to get to know him better." Calvin, 31, knows he's in the doghouse, the source says, and family is important to him, so he's nervous about making a good impression. But he feels better knowing he's already met Taylor's mom, Andrea, and that "she likes and approves of him." Well, you know what they say: Mother knows best!

Carrie and Mike marked their fifth wedding anniversary in July.

Carrie & Mike's BABY BATTLE

Carrie Underwood is just getting back into the swing of her music career since her son, Isaiah, was born in February; but a source says her husband, Mike Fisher, is already pressuring her about having another child. Mike, 35, "wants their children to grow up close in age; it just feels more like family to him," a pal says. "He's very old-fashioned and wants a lot of kids." However, Carrie, 32, is worried about maintaining her position at the top of the charts if she takes more time off from work. "She definitely wants more kids but would rather focus on music right now," the insider says. "She doesn't want to sacrifice one for the other."

JLaw & Liam SPARKS FLYING

It's never been the right time for costars Jennifer Lawrence and Liam Hemsworth to date... until now! As the promotional tour for the final Hunger Games film kicks into high gear, a source says, the chemistry between the two stars — both single — is heating up, and "no one would be surprised if they took their friendship to the next level." Liam, 25, was dating his Independence Day: Resurgence costar Maika Monroe until last month, while Jen split from Chris Martin back in July. Now, the source says, there's "no reason" for the good pals to "hide their feelings anymore." Maybe Katniss and Gale will end up together after all!

Jen "sexed up her look" for a dinner date with Liam in Berlin on Nov. 2.

"This is the first time he's made a real effort in rehab, and Kourt wants to do everything she can to help him," a source says.

Kourtney SUPPORTING SCOTT

The road to reconciliation continues to open up for Scott Disick and Kourtney Kardashian. While Scott's children, Mason, 5, Penelope, 3, and Reign, 10 months, have already visited him at the Cliffside Malibu rehab facility he entered in October, Kourtney, 36, put aside the former couple's differences on Nov. 1 to bring the older kids to the center herself. A source says she "appreciates Scott's dedication to getting well," and although she's not ready to get back together yet, "she knows the kids need their dad." The visit was inspiring for 32-year-old Scott, says the insider: "He wants to be there for the kids as they grow, and he still has hope they can all be together again."

Halle UNDER ATTACK

In a bizarre twist, Halle Berry's first two husbands are now supporting her soon-to-be ex, Olivier Martinez, 49. Halle's first husband, David Justice, 49, lashed out at the star a week after news of her third divorce broke. "[Halle] was mad at me leaving the relationship, so she and her Hollywood Team just tried to destroy my character," he tweeted on Nov. 2. "Yup, me, Eric [Benét], Gabriel [Aubry] and Olivier were all her 'knight in shining armor' until it ends. Then we all become the worst guys in history." The next day, her second husband, Eric, 49, chimed in, writing that David was "tweeting some truth 'dis mornin'." Following their 1997 split, Halle filed a restraining order against David, but he insists that he'd never been violent toward her. An insider says this calculated move is typical of Halle, 49, who is "very vindictive." Adds the source: "There's hope that after David and Eric's rants she'll tone down her rage — but no one believes she'll really change."

THEY'RE MAKING MUSIC

It's hard to imagine Gwen singing country, but she and Blake recently wrote a song together, reports say.

We're Having A Baby!

It's on: Loved-up Voice costars Gwen Stefani and Blake Shelton are so into each other, they want to start a family!

TRADING PLACES

On Halloween, Gwen dressed as a cowgirl, while Blake appeared to be some kind of SoCal dude!

“BLAKE HAS ALWAYS ADMIRED GWEN AND HER ABILITY TO HAVE IT ALL” — A SOURCE

On their hit show, The Voice, country star Blake Shelton and pop-rock icon Gwen Stefani are rivals. But in real life, they're close. So close, in fact, that after a PDA-packed Halloween weekend, during which the high-profile pair were photographed getting handsy at a party thrown by their fellow Voice coach Adam Levine (see pic next page!), they made the decision to publicly cop to their relationship status, a surprising step for two stars of their stature — especially when one considers that the ink is barely dry on their respective divorce papers!

Blake, 39, announced the end of his marriage to Miranda Lambert, 31, on July 20, while Gwen, 46, went public with her breakup from Gavin Rossdale, 50, just two weeks later, on Aug. 3.

But a source close to the coupled-up colleagues says that ever since Gwen made a move on Blake, they're so smitten, they'd be hard-pressed to hide it. “Blake has a picture of Gwen as the screen saver on his phone,” the source reports. “When they're together, they literally can't wipe the smiles off their faces. It's very sweet.”

A LONG FLIRTATION

Indeed, in retrospect, the newly single stars appear to have used their August press tour, ostensibly meant to promote the new season of their Emmy-winning show, to engage in a little flirtation by proxy. For example, when asked which of his castmates he'd most like to be for a day, Blake answered Adam, but only because, he continued, he was “trying to be nice. If I said Gwen, it's just so I could stand in front of a mirror naked, so I'm gonna say Adam instead.” And Gwen, seemingly just as taken (if a bit more reserved), told an interviewer, about Blake, “He's such a fun, funny guy. I love being around him.”

The enormous Beverly Hills home Gwen once shared with Gavin (left) hasn't officially been listed for sale, but she's reportedly asked a real estate agent to start seeking buyers. She's eager for a fresh start, it seems — like the one she's made with Blake, who's been staying in a nearby Hollywood Hills home. "They've talked about moving in together," a source says.

THEY WON'T BE RUSHING DOWN THE AISLE, BUT NO ONE WOULD BE SURPRISED IF THEY GOT ENGAGED" — A SOURCE

But their attraction wasn't superficial, insiders say; they also bonded over their breakups. In fact, one insider adds, they even visited a healing retreat together out West: "They arrived separately and checked in under fake names; it was a small, intimate gathering of people going through difficult events and turning toward spirituality to help them cope." The insider says that Gwen told friends afterwards that the trip was "much needed," explaining,

"I haven't felt this good in years."

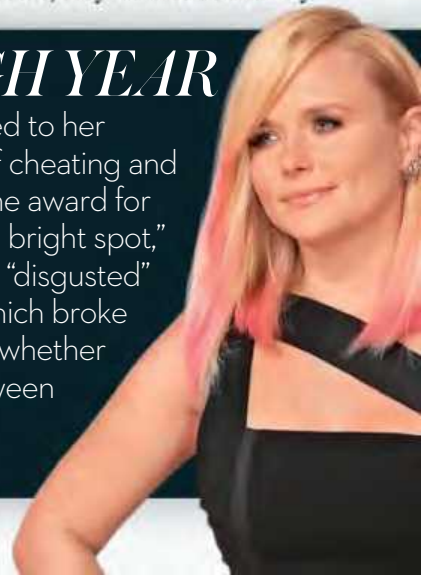

Her new romance is a huge part of that. On the surface, of course, Blake and Gwen seem like an odd couple — for proof, just try to picture their most recent exes trying to carry on even a conversation about the weather, much less an affair of their own. But the source insists that their connection is real: "The chemistry between them is undeniable, but it's more than that. They've got this incredible bond, and they don't just want to date; they want to be a family."

FEELING GOOD
Blake and Gwen decided to come clean about their romance after these shots of him embracing her at a Halloween party went public.

MIRANDA'S ROUGH YEAR

At the CMAs on Nov. 4, Miranda alluded to her woes — divorce coupled with reports of cheating and drunken outbursts — while accepting the award for Female Vocalist of the Year. "I needed a bright spot," she said. Indeed, a source says she was "disgusted" by the news about Blake and Gwen, which broke earlier that day. "She always wondered whether there might have been something between them, just based on the way he talked about Gwen," the source says.

A LITTLE BIT COUNTRY

Rock-'n'-roll Gwen and down-home Blake aren't the first unlikely celeb couple!

PLAYING IT SAFE

Because they worked together before they got together, Blake has already met Gwen's children. But the new couple have yet to update Kingston, 9, Zuma, 7, and Apollo, 20 months (here with dad Gavin), about their change in status. "The divorce is hard enough for the kids," the source says. "The plan is to let them get to know Blake as a friend."

FAMILY PLANNING

Yes, that's right: Insiders believe that, just a few weeks in, Blake and Gwen already have a baby on the way! "Gwen made an appointment with a doctor in late October," a source says, "after signs pointed to her being pregnant. She's already changed her lifestyle in preparation for the possibility. And Blake would be thrilled to finally become a dad."

His younger ex-wife's refusal to have a baby on his timeline was a major point of contention between them pretty much from the moment they got married, the first source contends: "Miranda felt like she had plenty of time, but he thought the clock was ticking. He would have been happy to start having kids right away."

So with Gwen, he's ecstatic that they're not wasting any time, especially because she's a little older than he is. "He'd love to have a son he could raise to be an outdoorsman," a source says, "just like him." But first, they're looking forward to sharing some quiet time together to let it all soak in. After flying in a private jet to Nashville for the Country Music Awards — at which both Blake and Miranda performed but Gwen, in the interest of keeping the peace, skipped — they headed to Blake's secluded Oklahoma ranch, so she could see how he likes to live.

TOTALLY IN SYNC

It's only fair, given that they've spent most of their relationship in Los Angeles, where California girl Gwen has long resided. And though she's slowly made Blake "more Hollywood," she's more than willing to be a little bit country too. In fact, according to new reports, the two songwriters recently collaborated on a country tune!

Making beautiful music together is certainly a good sign, and the source says that, metaphorically at least, there will be more where that comes from: "They're both so excited about their future together."

JULIA AND LYLE

In 1993, Julia Roberts married country singer Lyle Lovett after dating him for just three weeks! They split in 1995.

RENÉE AND KENNY

Renée Zellweger and Kenny Chesney dated for four months before they wed (and were married precisely that long).

SHERYL AND KID ROCK

Romance rumors flared after Sheryl Crow and Kid Rock had a country hit together with "Picture" in 2002.

Brad & Angie's Beautiful Life

CONSUMMATE COSTARS BOTH IN LIFE AND ON SCREEN, BRAD PITT AND ANGELINA JOLIE MAKE RULING THE WORLD LOOK EASY

On the Up-and-Up

Yes, that's Angelina, 40, and Brad, 51, looking like ageless wax statues; the glam pair costar as a fraught married couple in By the Sea, but their own partnership seems more in sync than ever. "We had to stay in our corners, like boxers," Angie said about their at-odds characters. But back at home with their six kids, she said, "It was bedtime stories... we had to immediately snap back to something that was uniting and positive and loving."

Angie and Brad coordinated in steel grays and blues at a NYC screening of By the Sea, which Angie wrote and directed.

Ever in Demand

Angie's third feature-film directorial effort, By the Sea, was inspired by her grief after the 2007 passing of her mom, Marcheline Bertrand. Brad recently said he loved being directed by his wife, whom he called "decisive, incredibly intuitive... and sexy at her post." Not that they needed this film to cement their perch atop the A-list; Angie's preparing to reprise her role as Maleficent while Brad's hard at work on the comedy War Machine and has six projects in the pipeline.

Says a source, "The kids' exposure to those less fortunate has given them real perspective." Kardashians they aren't!

Best Brood in Town

A multinational traveling band of cool kids, the Jolie-Pitt clan — Maddox, 14, Pax, 11, Shiloh, 9, Zahara, 10, and 7-year-old twins Knox and Vivienne — are being raised to be socially aware and culturally inspired. Maddox is even helping mom with a Netflix original film about the genocidal Khmer Rouge regime in his native Cambodia. "Angie was thrilled that he wanted to make this movie with her," says a source, adding, "She's incredibly proud of all the kids. They're best friends and love spending time together."

Real Estate Mavens

A pack of gypsies needs plenty of places to rest their globe-trotting heads. While Brad and Angelina are unloading one such abode — their New Orleans house is on the market for a cool $6.5 million — they still have a huge compound in the L.A. neighborhood of Los Feliz (right) and the 1,200-acre Château Miraval in the village of Correns, France (below). "The children prefer the château, which is like Disneyland for them," says a source. "They can run around with no restrictions."

"It was the kids who picked the château as the location for their parents' wedding," says a source of the iconic, sweeping property dotted with vineyards.

Will They Have More Kids?

While there's no couple better suited to procreating than these two, insiders say Brad and Angie are satisfied with their family of eight. And after Angelina's elective surgery earlier this year to have her ovaries removed, she seems focused on staying healthy for the six kids she already has. "There was no vanity to my wife's [surgical] approach," Brad said, adding, "It was just another one of those things in life that makes you tighter — and she was doing it for the kids and she was doing it for her family so we could be together."

A source says Eva is stressed by juggling motherhood and work, and Ryan misses the fun-loving woman he met on the set of The Place Beyond the Pines.

Eva got “crazy jealous” over Ryan’s filming La La Land with Emma Stone. “She grilled him every day about Emma,” says a source.

“RYAN FEELS STIFLED BY EVA. IT’S NOT THE WAY HE WANTS TO LIVE”

Ryan & Eva

HIDING FROM THEIR PROBLEMS

THEY FINALLY EMERGED AS A FAMILY MORE THAN A YEAR AFTER THEIR DAUGHTER'S BIRTH. BUT WHAT'S BEEN TROUBLING RYAN GOSLING AND EVA MENDES?

There's being private, and then there's being positively clandestine. Eva Mendes and Ryan Gosling crossed that line around the time their daughter, Esmeralda, was born in September 2014, as insiders say the challenges of being new parents created a huge rift in the couple's relationship. They've rarely been spotted together since, and though they did venture out for Halloween — the first time they've been seen in public with Esmeralda — the chance to go incognito in masks and makeup may have been as much of a lure as the holiday itself. At home, insiders report, there are more tricks than treats. "They're amicable in front of Esmeralda," says a source, "but once she's tucked into bed, the tensions surface. They spend all their time either arguing or in complete silence. It's not pretty."

TABLE FOR ONE

Once Ryan, 34, and Eva, 41, enjoyed date nights at the romantic restaurant Little Dom's in L.A.'s Los Feliz

BAD TO THE BONE

A well-disguised Ryan and Eva took daughter Esmeralda, 13 months, trick-or-treating in Pasadena. It was their first public sighting with the tot, and though they put on a united front, an insider says that "Eva is pushing Ryan's buttons" behind the scenes.

neighborhood. Now a source reveals that in recent weeks, Ryan has only dined there alone or with a male friend. "I used to see Eva and Ryan there all the time, and they looked really happy together," says the source. "But not anymore. The same thing happened with Jon Hamm shortly before he and Jennifer Westfeldt announced their breakup — he started eating by himself."

The truth is, Eva — a very hands-on mom who insists on doing without a nanny — hasn't been getting out much in general. "She coops up with Esmeralda and won't leave the house for days," says an insider. "Ryan has all but given up trying to reason with her."

He's also been working on back-to-back movies, and the one he just wrapped, La La Land, has driven a further wedge in his relationship. The musical romance costars Ryan's newly single pal Emma Stone, 26 — and sources say Eva wouldn't let up on her jealous fears. "It didn't matter how often Ryan told her they're just friends," says an insider. "And she's convinced he was telling Emma about their problems."

Now the couple can find little relief from their mounting issues. "Ryan's normally a chill guy, but he feels stifled by Eva," says a source. "It's not the way he wants to live."

JIMMY PARTYING OUT OF CONTROL

STRESSED-OUT FUNNYMAN

JIMMY FALLON'S LATE-NIGHT

CAROUSING IS NO LONGER

A LAUGHING MATTER

One bizarre mishap is an accident; two could be considered clumsy; three in four months is... a problem. That's the conclusion Jimmy Fallon's friends and colleagues have reached following the multiple injuries he's suffered recently, and they're now convinced that his escalating partying has put him — and his marriage — in real danger.

Insiders say that NBC executives held a series of crisis meetings on Nov. 3 to air concerns about their cash-cow host of The Tonight Show — and despite Jimmy, 41, assuring everyone he's

PRESSURE COOKER

Tonight Show staffers say Jimmy seems "strung out or hung over," according to a source. He's working 12-hour days under "tremendous stress."

FRACTURED FAMILY?

Jimmy's wild behavior has so alienated his 48-year-old wife, Nancy (in May with their daughters, Winnie, 2, and Frances, 11 months), that sources claim she's kicked him out of their home on occasion.

in "top shape," they're debating whether to stage an intervention. On the home front, Jimmy's wife of nearly eight years, Nancy Juvonen, is apparently fed up: A source has seen Jimmy hustling with luggage into the Gramercy Park Hotel, near his family's apartment, and unwinding at night in the hotel's exclusive Rose Bar. "He's been drinking way too much," says an insider, who adds that the normally low-key star gets "frenetic" when drunk. "It's all catching up to him."

A DOWNWARD SPIRAL

Stories of Jimmy's partying have been circulating since his Saturday Night Live days, when Horatio Sanz, his partner in crime (and in cracking up during sketches), has said they were "superfunctioning alcoholics." Jimmy himself admitted that during a depressing post-SNL period, "I was probably drinking more than I should have been drinking." More recent reports detail a pub brawl and an inebriated public performance of Katy Perry's "Walking on Air," while a bartender at one of Jimmy's haunts (albeit affectionately) calls him "a mess."

Insiders say something has changed in Jimmy since his show's summer break.

Though he's successfully fended off competition from Stephen Colbert and signed a $72 million, six-year contract extension, the stress of his high-wire hosting act is clearly taking its toll. "He's under a tremendous amount of pressure," says an insider. "He's exhausted, and he's turned into a locomotive drinker — taking shot after shot and chasing them with beer. The next step will be rehab, to save his life."

BEYOND CLUMSY A SERIES OF FREAK ACCIDENTS SIGNALS THAT JIMMY'S NOT AS PARTY-HARDY AS HE USED TO BE

FINGER POINTING

In June, after drinking with fans, Jimmy stumbled on a rug and almost severed his ring finger. Repairing it required six hours of microsurgery.

AN INCONVENIENT TOOTH

Two months later, he chipped a front tooth trying to open a tube of scar tissue repair gel for his finger. "#BestSummerEver," he posted.

YOUNG, HOT AND UNEMPLOYED!

THESE STARS MADE A SPLASH... AND THEN DISAPPEARED

FRIEDA PINTO: ONE HIT AND A BUNCH OF MISSES

The Mumbai-born 31-year-old seemed like the next big thing when her first-ever feature, 2008's Slumdog Millionaire, became a blockbuster. But since then she's struggled, appearing mostly in non-hits like Day of the Falcon and Immortals. She's still at it, though: Her next big picture, Jungle Book: Origins, is due out in 2017.

JESSICA BIEL: A SLIM BODY OF WORK

Justin Timberlake's supersexy wife, 33, has been a celebrity since her breakthrough playing a preacher's daughter on 7th Heaven, but despite a desire to establish herself as a "mature" movie star in, ahem, films like 2007's I Now Pronounce You Chuck and Larry (below), she's been in lots of flops (like Total Recall).

ROONEY MARA: M.I.A.

The sullen-faced 30-year-old was Oscar-nominated for 2011's Girl With the Dragon Tattoo, but after a flurry of activity in 2013, she seemed to stop working for a while. Will her new movie, Carol, be the career comeback that Pan definitely wasn't?

PENN BADGLEY: SINGING A DIFFERENT TUNE

The 29-year-old former Gossip Girl star hasn't acted much since that show ended in 2012; instead, he's been trying to get a music career off the ground. As frontman of the band MOTHXR, Brooklyn-based Penn has played gigs around the country. He's got the knit cap and sulky rocker look down, at least.

TAYLOR LAUTNER: JUST A SHEEP IN WOLF'S CLOTHING?

Twilight werewolf and martial arts expert Taylor, 23, was once touted as a candidate for the kind of career enjoyed by older stars like Bruce Willis and Tom Cruise (whom he kind of resembles). But his 2011 thriller Abduction fizzled, taking his action-hero hopes with it.

RACHEL BILSON: STRICTLY SMALL SCREEN

The O.C. star, 33, tried to make the leap to movies, but if 2008's Jumper is remembered at all, it's for having introduced her to fiancé and baby-daddy Hayden Christensen. Her CW series, Hart of Dixie, was canceled last spring, leaving her with lots of free time.

DIANNA AGRON: NO JOY POST-GLEE

The blonde, 29, hoped to be a big-screen star after Glee made her famous. But the series, which wrapped earlier this year, seems to have outlasted the public's interest in her, particularly after her early extracurricular films flopped; she's got nothing but indies on the horizon.

THE ATE

MOTHER'S DAY

"I look at things now going, 'What am I leaving behind for my son?' " says the actress, here with 5-year-old Louis.

THE FIX IS IN

Sandra says her Our Brand Is Crisis character "brings a degree of chaos when she steps into the world."

AM

SANDRA BULLOCK AND GEORGE CLOONEY TALK ABOUT THEIR DECADES-LONG FRIENDSHIP AND THEIR LATEST PROJECT

AN OUT-OF-THIS-WORLD BOND

Long before they sported

spacesuits in Gravity, George and Sandra (right, in 1995) bonded as struggling actors. If things had gone differently, they might have costarred first in the 1998 crime caper Out of Sight; instead, Jennifer Lopez snagged that role. Since the '90s, Sandra has joked about George, "His suits are better, his hair is better."

They tease each other like they're the world's most glamorous brother and sister. George Clooney even played wingman for Sandra Bullock once, telling a guy she was interested in dating that "if you don't marry her, I will." But the secret to their 25-year friendship may be that they remained simply pals and colleagues, sharing the screen in 2013's Gravity and now reuniting for Our Brand Is Crisis, which stars Sandra, 51, and is produced by George, 54, and his filmmaking partner, Grant Heslov. Sandra's role in Crisis — an American political campaign fixer who advises a Bolivian presidential candidate — was originally written for George and changed at her request. Here, she and George share anecdotes about role reversals, offbeat skills and fighting fair.

How was it working together again?

Sandra: We've seen each other through many facets and stages of life, and the nice thing is that we still like and admire each other at the end of it. The challenges — there aren't any, because we disagree well.

George: We fight fair. And we have a lot of fun.

Sandra: It's nice to still be able to say that after all these years. Not a lot of people can.

How did this character get changed from a man to a woman?

Sandra: I was able to say, "Would you be willing to take this role that Grant and George have cherished and developed for a long time and change it to a female?" And the only hesitation was, "Can the writer do it?" So that hopefully shows a shift in the climate for women in film. I don't mind being the one to ask, "What have you got that you'd be willing to change for me?"

George: We're going to do 12 Angry Women next [laughs].

Sandra: We'll all be on the same cycle, and it'll be great. [Ed. note: George is producing an all-female remake of Ocean's 11, with Sandra as star.]

Sandra, what was it about this character that resonated with you?

Sandra: She was human... flawed. She tried to take herself off the carousel once and got pulled back in because of an addictive need to win. That to me is really interesting because it's in all of us. I have gotten off many carousels only to find myself on another one, and that's no one's fault but my own. I like to think that eventually I will be the person I want to be and not step back on any carousel, unless it's one with my son... I look at things now going, "What am I leaving behind for my son? What do I want to say to him about how I want the world to be, about the people I admire?"

Switching gears, there's a scene where you moon a bus full of people. Did you use a body double?

Sandra: That was George's butt. For some reason, no one wants to believe me on that.

It gets a lot of applause.

Sandra: A lot of hard work went into it! That's not nature, it's leg lifts.

Are there any unusual skills you've acquired on a movie set?

Sandra: I have absolutely no skills.

George: Acting is fun because you get to dip your toe into some world where, like, a stunt driver will teach you how to slam a car into reverse and spin it around sideways. We get to live bits and pieces of interesting people's lives, and that's really fun. But you don't end up holding those skills for very long — they come in and go out pretty quickly.

George, if you could turn the tables and choose one of Sandra's roles to play, what would it be?

George: I think we all know it's Miss Congeniality.

Sandra: Have you seen his legs?

George: I rock a swimsuit better than almost anybody — a one-piece; the bikini is, you know... I'm 54. OK!

Kate Bosworth FASHION PLAIT

We wanted to do a 'cool girl' braid," says hairstylist Bridget Brager about the look she created with Kate Bosworth for the SAG Foundation Conversation on The Art of More. "It's something a bit different but not too flashy," she explains. To start, she sprayed hair with a sea-salt spray and then rough blow-dried it before adding waves with an iron. Next, she created a deep side part and Dutch-braided the hair down the side of the head, following the hairline. "The idea was to have the braid continuing its way down just behind the ear and then wrapping around the nape," she says. To finish, she worked volumizing powder into the braid while pulling it apart for what she calls "a lived-in feel."

"White liner adds a pop to your regular eye makeup," says Jessica Scantlin, director of artistry at Blushington. For Gigi's fun effect, "use white liner to draw a wing above the upper lash line, then add black liner under the white — it helps clean up the edges and keep the white from turning gray." For Kelly's more classic look, "white liner on the bottom lash line helps eyes seem more open," explains Jessica. It balances out her heavy black liner and dramatic lashes.

"That was amazing and so cold," tweeted Lucy after her performance at last year's Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

Holiday Parade

If you'll be braving the fall chill at a Thanksgiving Day parade, proper outerwear is key. A long statement coat, like Lucy Hale's (left), will keep you warm without sacrificing on style. Bonus: Unless you're heading straight to an indoor event, it's all anyone will see, so wear whatever you want underneath!

FACING THE COLD

"A good moisturizer is essential to avoid cracking or flaking skin," says celebrity makeup artist Jessica Paillant. "Once your base is hydrated, you can go as light or heavy as you want on your makeup. Shimmery or satiny shadows are perfect for festive occasions, paired with a matte lipstick to balance out the shine."

Angelina Jolie, Brad Pitt | R | Nov. 13

Ten years after falling in love on the set of Mr. & Mrs. Smith, Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie are back on the big screen together — but don't expect any sexy fun and games this time around. Set in 1970s France, this searing drama follows husband and wife Roland (Pitt) and Vanessa (Jolie, who also wrote and directed), who retreat to an elegant cliffside hotel as their marriage crumbles. Prepare for fighting, pill-popping, boozing, plenty of tears and even a few slaps across the face as the gorgeous couple's deep-seated problems gradually come to light.

| PG-13 | Nov. 13

What's the holiday season without a festive film about a wacky but lovable family? This feel-good comedy follows four generations of the Coopers as they come together for their Christmas Eve celebration. With a star-studded cast — including John Goodman and Diane Keaton as the parents of perpetually single Eleanor (Olivia Wilde), single dad Hank (Ed Helms) and troublemaker Emma (Marisa Tomei) — the dysfunctional clan weather hilarious mishaps, from the grandparents losing their granddaughter at the grocery store to crashing sleds on the slopes.

Tues., Nov. 24, at 8 PM ET on ABC Family

After tons of twists and turns, the 130th episode of the drama finally revealed that the destructive “A” was Alison DiLaurentis’ long-lost transgender sister, known as CeCe Drake. Another shocker: The finale flashed forward five years! Though the show doesn’t return until Jan. 12, this one-hour special features exclusive interviews and will give fans a glimpse of what’s to come for the girls in the second half of season 6.

CAM

COUNTRY'S LATEST STAR IS TAKING OVER THE AIRWAVES

It takes a whole lot of luck to make it in the music biz — but for Camaron Marvel Ochs, known simply as Cam, it also took a ton of time and hard work. With determination and the help of Kickstarter, she sent her demo out to Sony and, soon enough, had her own EP on the shelves in early 2015. Now she's set to open for Brad Paisley next year! The 30-year-old country newcomer gives us the scoop on her first major-label album, Untamed, which drops Dec. 11.

Tell us about your new album.

I spent a lot of time on it. We've been working on it for five years, and now it's exactly how I wanted it to sound. When it comes to relationships or ideas, I hold on and just whittle away until I get to the bottom of it.

Do you have a favorite track?

Right now, it's a song called “Hung Over on Heartache.” It's about when you have a fight with someone and say things you shouldn't, and then you have to live with that feeling of needing to repair what you just unleashed.

You wrote Miley Cyrus' song “Maybe You're Right.” Did you get to meet her?

Yes. She was so friendly. It's so weird when you write a song and someone takes it in a totally different direction, but I'm really proud of how that turned out. She did a killer job.

Who is your biggest country influence?

Eric Church. Also Patsy Cline. My grandparents had a horse ranch in Southern California, and we'd listen to Patsy Cline there. I got so attached to her music.

Why do you always wear yellow?

It's a friendly, open color, which is sort of who I am. It's my sunshine that I get to bring with me, especially onstage. I love the idea that you put out a vibe for everyone who's there. That sunny vibe is the best.

“I devoted years to a single purpose,” Cam said of making her demo.

SEASON'S BEST TREATS

HOLIDAY TIPS!

A FAST, FULL-BODY WORKOUT

It is highly unlikely you'll make it to the gym over a holiday weekend. So grab a jump rope and run through this quick calorie-burning, energy-boosting routine!

STEP 1

Two-leg jumps, five minutes

Jump softly and steadily, with shoulder blades down and back, and chest lifted. Swing the rope with wrists, not arms.

STEP 2

Plank, 45 seconds

Place elbows directly under shoulders, nose over thumbs and feet shoulder width apart. Draw belly button up and in. Keep legs engaged the entire time.

STEP 3

Single-leg jumps, two minutes

Jump on one leg for 30 seconds, holding opposite foot in front of you. Switch legs (ideally without stopping) for 30 seconds. Repeat.

STEP 4

Two-leg jumps, two and a half minutes

Jump as fast as possible.

STEP 5

Arm/leg extensions, 45 seconds

Come onto all fours. Extend left leg backward at hip height while bringing right arm up and extending it past your ear. Come back to center; switch sides. Alternate for 45 seconds, keeping core engaged and shoulders down and back the entire time. Repeat entire routine if there's time.

EAT SMARTER, NOT LESS

No need to avoid pumpkin pie or mashed potatoes — just be careful about when you eat them. Intermittent fasting is one of the best ways to burn fat efficiently without having to limit portions. Chow down during an 8-hour window (11 AM to 7 PM) and fast for a 16-hour window (7 PM to 11 AM), which gives your body a chance to reboot.

LOSE EIGHT POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS

Seeing family and friends for the holidays can be stressful, but one thing you shouldn't sweat is your weight. Just ask Dailyn Santana (left), who lost 8 pounds in just two weeks by following the SlimFast Plan. She simply swapped two meals a day for a SlimFast Meal Replacement Shake or Bar, added in three new 100-calorie SlimFast snacks, and then had one 500-calorie meal. The SlimFast Advanced Nutrition is the best and easiest yet, with delicious new snacks like Peanut Butter Chocolate Bites and products packed with 20 grams of protein, 100 percent of your daily fiber and only 1 gram of sugar. And since these great-tasting shakes and smoothies can curb your appetite for up to four hours, they are clinically proven to help you lose 50 percent more weight than with a reduced-calorie diet — so you'll lose weight easier than ever in just one week! Available at Walmart and other retailers. For details, visit SlimFast.com. Start losing weight yourself with the SlimFast Plan!

The hottest food scene in New York isn't always in Manhattan. Just 25 miles northeast, in the charming village of Harrison, family-owned Gus's Franklin Park Restaurant has been welcoming boldface names from the Big Apple and beyond since 1931. And thanks to the adjoining seafood store, rebooted in 2014 as the 4,000-square-foot epicurean mecca The Market at Gus's, the gourmet destination has only become a bigger draw. Ernie Kneuer, grandson of the original Gus, tells OK! that he expanded the menu to raves when he took over in 2004: "Lobster and prime rib are our best sellers, but Anne Hathaway always gets the fresh clams." Next door, he sells a variety of fresh fish, meats, breads, produce, cheeses and prepared foods, so patrons can bring the taste of Gus's home every day. gusseafood.com
